Cliff Goldmacher Biography

In the music business for over twenty years, Cliff Goldmacher is a songwriter, producer, engineer and owner of recording studios in Nashville and New York City. A multi-instrumentalist, Cliff has recorded, played on and produced thousands of demos for major and independent publishers, brand new songwriters and Grammy winners. The demos Cliff has recorded have ended up as major label cuts, in feature films and on television.

Cliff has worked as a staff songwriter for a major Nashville publisher and his songwriting collaborators include multi-platinum selling artists Chris Barron (Lead singer of the Spin Doctors) and Lisa Loeb. Cliff's songs have been cut by major label artists in genres ranging from country, pop and jazz to classical crossover. His music has also been used on NPR's "This American Life" and in national advertising campaigns.

As an educator, Cliff has served as a panelist on engineering at the NAMM (National Association of Music Merchandisers) convention and teaches workshops for BMI, ASCAP, The Songwriter's Guild of America and the Nashville Songwriter's Association International. Cliff is also a freelance journalist contributing to EQ Magazine and ProSound News along with numerous music websites and blogs.
